Meir plans appeal on transient camp

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Premier Golda Meir is flying to Vienna tonight to appeal personally to Chancellor Bruno Kreisky to retract his promise to Arab terrorists to shut down the Schoenau transit camp for Soviet Jews emigrating to Israel, reliable sources in Tel Aviv reported.

The sources said Mrs. Meir would probably also visit the camp at Schoenau Castle.

Mrs. Meir, in Strasbourg, France, to address the parliamentary assembly of the Council of Europe, said that Austria had "betrayed her own greatness" by agreeing to the demands of the terrorists to obtain the release of four hostages.

"We would like to believe that this decision is provisional or perhaps due to a misunderstanding," she said.

In her speech today Mrs. Meir warned that unless the nations of Western Europe take a firm stand against Arab terrorism, they ultimately will be at the mercy of "any lunatic, any group of gangsters."

Meanwhile, Jewish refugees from the Soviet Union continued to arrive at Schoenau, 70 miles south of Vienna, under heavy police escort. Informed sources said at least two groups arrived Sunday, and a spokesman for the Israeli embassy said as far as he knew, the center would continue to process 40 to 120 Jews a day for the time being.

The Austrian government has not said when it will fulfill its pledge to close the camp, a promise extracted over the weekend by two Arab guerrillas who kidnaped four hostages and held them for 15 hours.

Arab sources said over the weekend that the action by the two Arab guerrillas was the first step in a terrorists' plan to stop the flow of Soviet Jews to Israel.

Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky, himself a Jew, said his government would suspend the mass emigration via Austria and discontinue special measures to facilitate the refugees' transit from the border to the Vienna airport. But he said Austria will continue issuing transit visas to individual Soviet Jews.

In the two years since Moscow eased its restrictions on Jewish emigration, about 2,650 Soviet Jews a month have been passing through Schoenau.

The two guerrillas invaded a Moscow-to-Vienna train Friday just inside the Austrian border, seized three emigrating Soviet Jews and an Austrian border guard and demanded that the camp be closed. They drove their hostages to the Vienna airport and, after receiving Kreisky's pledge, released the hostages and boarded an Austrian government plane that eventually was allowed to land in Libya.

Although Libya has said it intends to execute hijackers who took a Japanese airliner jet to Libya two months ago and blew it up, a spokesman for the official Libyan news agency said the train raiders "will certainly not receive the same fate."

Contracts in Maryland under study

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Maryland's governor today named a task force to study the awarding of some state contracts without competitive bidding—the practice which is at the root of the investigation of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

A statement from Gov. Marvin Mandel's office said the task force would review Maryland's long-standing method of awarding engineering and architectural consultant contracts.

The 11-member panel is to propose legislation to correct any abuses by Dec. 1. The action comes during a widening federal probe of allegations that kickbacks and bribes influenced the distribution of state and local government contracts.

A federal grand jury in Baltimore now is hearing evidence about Agnew's alleged relations with architects and engineers when he was county executive in Baltimore and governor of Maryland.

In its first action, the grand jury indicted Dale Anderson, the current Baltimore County executive, on 39 counts of extortion and bribery. The charges involve eight consulting firms which have done business with the county.

Practices for awarding nonbid consultant contracts vary among state agencies and local governments. Many agencies use eligibility lists of contractors. Officials say the consultants on the lists are picked for their competence.

Both Democratic and Republican candidates on the state and local levels have received campaign contributions from contractors.

Mandel, a Democrat, raised more than $900,000 from a recent dinner fund-raiser.

Domestic spending is before committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee takes up the biggest domestic spending bill today with an eventual veto by President Nixon in prospect.

The bill provides funds for the Health, Education and Welfare and Labor departments.

Nixon and Congress have staged a running battle over such legislation since he took office. Nixon has vetoed the bills five times and only been overridden once.

This year the President recommended $31.6 billion for the departments, but the House voted $32.8 billion.

The Senate committee, which is expected to act on the bill in a couple of sessions, will increase the figure if past experience is any guide.

Many Democratic senators have said that Nixon's budget included inadequate funds for the health, education and antipoverty programs.

Attention will be centered on committee actions in Congress this week.

Originally, the legislators hoped the 1973 session would end this month. But now the leaders expect it to run well into November.

In floor action, the Senate planned to pass late today the $21-billion military procurement authorization bill requiring a 110,000-man cut in U.S. troops overseas.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Sunday the reduction is not likely to emerge intact from a conference with the House.

Floor debate also will begin during the day on the foreign economic aid bill authorizing $1.25 billion for the current year.

A mass transit operating subsidy measure is the only major legislation listed for debate this week in the House.

However, the House Ways and Means Committee begins closed-door work today on a Senate-passed bill to reform the private pension system.

On Wednesday, Ways and Means is to send to the House floor a sweeping foreign trade bill. Despite a plea from President Nixon, the panel is not expected to reverse its decision to include a provision denying trade concessions to Russia unless it eases its restrictive emigration policies.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., calls his Government Operations Committee into session today to begin writing a bill designed to give Congress greater control over the budget.

This had wide support early in the session but has become bogged down in controversy.

Increased property tax receipts expected

Local property tax receipts from Pettis County are expected to exceed the 1972 total by about $240,000, according to figures released Monday by the Pettis County clerk's office.

Statistics show that the total valuation of the county this year is $82,800,168, compared to last year's figure of $79,577,161.

Anticipated property tax income is $4,006,266.38, compared to last year's level of $3,764,353.91.

Real estate valuation rose about $1.5 million over last year, while personal property valuation increased about $66,000, figures indicate.

Railroad assessment figures also increased about $600,000 from last year, and the assessed valuation of manufacturers and merchants increased $157,000.

The breakdown of anticipated tax receipts and assessed valuation for 1973 is as follows:

Valuation: real estate, $47,542,610; personal property, $14,562,025; railroad (both state and locally assessed), $17,964,583; merchants and manufacturers, $2,730,950.

Anticipated tax revenue: real estate, $2,298,279.26; personal property, $697,883.16; railroad, $879,558.99; merchants and manufacturers, $130,544.97.

Similar 1972 figures are as follows: Valuation: real estate, $46,042,820; personal property, $13,596,698; railroad, $17,363,753; merchants and manufacturers, $2,573,890.

Anticipated tax revenue: real estate, $2,184,396.06; personal property, $636,248.58; railroad, $822,762; and merchants and manufacturers, $120,946.75.

Explosion rocks offices of airline

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — A powerful explosion rocked the offices of the Chilean airline company, Lan-Chile, at the height of the morning rush hour today, injuring at least three persons, authorities said.

They banned photographers and newsmen from the scene, leading to speculation that the blast was caused by elements of one of Brazil's long dormant terrorist groups.

Clandestine terrorist groups have been virtually wiped out by Brazil's military-backed government in the past three years, and no terrorist bombs have been set off in Rio since 1970.

A witness said a Brazilian entered the Lan-Chile office and after delivering a package, said, "I have a message for the government of Chile," then raced out of the office.

Brazil was one of the first governments to extend diplomatic recognition to the junta that overthrew Marxist President Salvador Allende of Chile Sept. 11.

Brazilian government officials have said privately they felt a special kinship to the Chilean military.

Gasoline prices have gone up in many areas as a result of relaxed Phase 4 controls but many dealers are still unhappy.

Independent service stations operators from nine states meeting over the weekend in Las Vegas urged an indefinite shutdown of stations throughout the nation until all retail price controls are lifted.

In San Francisco, a spokesman said independent dealers in northern California are "livid with rage."

And the president of the Albuquerque chapter of the New Mexico Gasoline Retailers Association, Raymond McDonald, said dealers "welcome the partial relief that's been granted us, but we still vehemently protest the control that prevents us from passing through wholesale increase in the price of gasoline to us."

Many gas stations took advantage of new regulations announced last Friday to raise prices over the weekend by as much as 2½ cents a gallon. Others said price increases would take effect early in the week.

Under Phase 4 regulations that went into effect Sept. 7 a ceiling was placed on gasoline prices generally limiting retail dealers to the same markup they charged on Jan. 10.

The regulations released Friday change the ceiling price to the retail price charged May 15 plus all wholesale price increases from May 15 to last Friday.

But many dealers are unhappy that there is no automatic provision for passing along future increases in wholesale prices to consumers.

Agnew is determined to prove his innocence

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has said privately that he believes his political career has been destroyed. But he has come out swinging publicly at his accusers, determined to prove his innocence.

Aides said Agnew told a private weekend meeting of California Republican officials that even if he is exonerated of allegations of corruption, his political future has been destroyed.

Agnew spoke to the Republican officials Saturday after dramatically declaring war on his accusers in a nationally televised speech to a Republican women's convention in Los Angeles.

In that fiery address, an angry Agnew said he would not resign if indicted, that he was being framed by persons in Maryland because he would not stop investigations against them, and that someone high in the Justice Department was out to get him to make up for bungling the Watergate investigation.

Afterward, Agnew is said to have told the California party leaders there would remain "lingering doubts" in the minds of many people even if his name is cleared. He said that he does expect to be cleared of allegations of wrongdoing.

Agnew's pessimism was not shared by the convention delegates, and it was said that the California GOP leaders also believe his future is not ruined.

It remained to be seen whether Agnew's view of the future would be changed by the tumultuous outpouring of support he received after Saturday's address, in which he again declared his innocence.

A federal grand jury in Baltimore is looking into alleged kickbacks to politicians by contractors in Maryland, where Agnew was formerly a county executive and governor.

In another development, Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel announced today the creation of an 11-member task force to study the state's long-standing practice of awarding engineering and architectural consultants' contracts without competitive bidding.

It is allegations that contractors made kickbacks in return for those contracts that led to the grand jury's indictment of Dale Anderson, the current Baltimore County executive. Presentation to the grand jury of allegations against Agnew began last week, although Agnew's attorneys have filed motions to stop the probe.

In his Saturday speech, the vice president said the allegations against him were a frameup by persons seeking revenge because he refused to use his office to halt the federal inquiry into the activities of others in Maryland.

Near crash site

Helicopter landing spot being cleared

MENA, Ark. (AP) — Rescue workers began hacking out a helicopter clearing on a thickly wooded mountainside today to get at the wreck of an airliner missing since last Thursday.

Rescuers who had reached the scene on foot Sunday spent the night at the site and began clearing the way for the helicopters.

The Army denied a state police report that there were secret documents aboard the plane. Security was tight around the crash area, but an Army spokesman said military involvement in the operations was confined to "helping local authorities gain access to the site and aiding in identification of bodies."

Eight unidentified bodies were recovered Sunday night from the wreckage of the Texas International Convair turboprop. No survivors were found from the plane which carried eight passengers and a crew of three on its scheduled flight from El Dorado, Ark., to nearby Texarkana, Ark.

Darkness and terrain too rugged for helicopters to land hampered search efforts. The area was sealed off, and the search was suspended until daylight, with three persons still unaccounted for.

The area in which the plane crashed has been described as dangerous for aircraft. Mountains rise suddenly out of 1,000-foot hills to a height of 2,800 feet.

The wreckage was spotted by a student pilot shortly before dusk on Black Fork Mountain, which is about 14 miles northwest of Mena.

Edward Dreifus of the National Transportation Safety Board said the bodies recovered by paramedics who were lowered to the crash site could not be immediately identified.

For three days the search for the missing plane had centered in south Arkansas along the 75-mile line the scheduled flight was to have taken. Airline spokesman Jim O'Donnell had no comment when asked why the plane had gone 100 miles off course, but authorities had earlier speculated it might have done so to avoid a storm.

Forrest Ogden, a newsman who flew over the crash site before rescue units arrived, said he saw no signs of life. He said the airliner had crashed into the east edge of Black Fork Mountain, a peak of about 2,500 feet, knocking down several trees.

Ogden said the search had moved into the Mena area only after a truck driver read about the plane crash and reported that he had seen a fire on Black Fork Mountain Thursday night.

The Convair left El Dorado at 8:20 p.m. Thursday night on a 20-minute flight to Texarkana. Between the two Arkansas cities it encountered a violent thunderstorm. The plane was reported missing by the airline shortly before midnight, about an hour after it would have exhausted its fuel supply.

More than 400 persons and 50 aircraft participated in a ground and air search in south Arkansas through the weekend.

government does not plan to ration gasoline or heating oil.

Love said the oil and gasoline price increases would be in addition to those now going into effect after the Cost of Living Council's decision Friday permitting certain price hikes.

Many gas station dealers complained the price hikes approved by the council would provide only temporary relief and that they were still being victimized by the big oil companies and government price controls.

"It looks like they're going to throw us some crumbs instead of a slice of bread," Robert Graff of the Inland Empire Gasoline Dealers Association of Spokane, Wash., said.

In Houston, Tex., dealers announced a three-day shutdown beginning today in protest.

Walter Jennings of Charleston, S.C., president of the South Carolina Service Station Dealers Association, said the increases will give dealers a chance to break even, at least temporarily.

But Jennings said he expects major oil companies to raise prices again. "If that happens, we'll just have to go to the Cost of Living Council again," he said.

Meanwhile, John A. Love, director of the White House Energy Policy Office, predicted price increases of as much as 15 per cent over the next six to 12 months.

"I personally feel that (price) controls will be coming off petroleum and petroleum products in the months ahead and obviously the prices are going to rise," Love said.

Love, speaking on the ABC television program "Issues and Answers," said the oil companies get their big profit picture at the expense of the small businessman," said Bob Moore of the California Service Station Association, which represents dealers in northern California.

The Las Vegas meeting was closed to newsmen.

But Mike Hemp, second vice president of the California Service Station Association, said the nationwide shutdown proposed at the meeting would begin Friday, if approved by the nation's independent dealers. He said the proposed shutdown would remain in effect until all federal controls on retail gas prices are lifted.

Representatives from independently operated stations in Arizona, California, New York, Illinois, Indiana, New Mexico, Utah, Louisiana and Nevada reportedly attended the meeting.

Soil and water district conservationist welcomed

Dennis Borchardt, newly-named Soil Conservation Service district conservationist for the recently-organized soil and water district in northwest Pettis County, was officially welcomed to the area at a combination reception and press conference Monday morning in Borchardt's office on the second floor of the federal building.

Borchardt, who began his duties in the new district Monday, was introduced by Ervin Rumpf, chairman of the five-man soil and water district board of directors.

Responding to questions from farmers attending the function, Borchardt informed them that extensive files will be kept of his involvement with each farm he serves in the district. Such a file, he said, will include records of any long-range planning programs which he will assist the farmer in arranging; the date in which segments of the long range plan are completed; a record of the soil composition of the particular farm, and an aerial photo of the location.

Such records, he indicated, will be instrumental in maintaining a history of soil and water management practices implemented in the district.

Borchardt said he, in turn, will be able to call upon the services of some 1,200 scientists, soil and water management specialists and University of Missouri extension department personnel across the state to assist in dealing with specific problems if the need arises.

He encouraged farmers desiring to take advantage of his services, which will cost them nothing, to contact him as soon as possible to arrange an appointment.

"I know that as soon as their crops are out, farmers will want me to come out and help them," he said. "The sooner they call me and set up a time, the better the chance I'll find time to serve them."

Borchardt emphasized that while his primary obligation is to assist farmers in the district, he will also be available to assist other land owners, including municipal governments or school districts.

"We helped the county court in Clinton County (where he worked prior to being transferred to Pettis County) select a site for a sanitary landfill," Borchardt said. "I look forward to assisting small landowners and units of government as well as farmers."

Borchardt indicated that he will request an assistant in the near future to assist him as a "leg man" to help in surveying projects and other work.

It was also announced at the meeting that the wives of the district board of directors are planning to organize a ladies auxiliary to the district. One duty of such a group, it was explained, would be to promote soil and water management education, particularly at the elementary school level.

Cost of increasing fire protection to be revealed

Expected to highlight tonight's City Council discussion is a cost estimate statement outlining the probable cost to the city of reducing city firemen's working hours to 51 hours a week.

The statement will be submitted by Third Ward Councilman Carl Franklin, who prepared the figures at the request of the council at their last meeting Sept. 17.

At that meeting, City Firemen presented the councilmen with a nine-point platform of wage and work improvement proposals.

Franklin said he was assisted in his efforts by Fire Chief Willas Jabas, who computed how many additional firemen would be needed, and City Clerk Ralph Dedrick, who figured the total added cost to the city that would be incurred by the hiring of the additional firemen.

Although declining to specify in advance what the estimated increased cost figure would be, Franklin did say that Jabas calculated it would take five additional firemen to compensate for the shortened work week.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 o'clock in the council's Municipal Building Chambers.

Accident victims remain 'critical'

Two men taken to Bothwell Hospital following a car-pickup head-on collision Friday evening remain in critical condition, a spokesman for the Hospital reported Monday.

Billy G. Wahler, 26, 5 Burton Drive, driver of the car, and Robert P. Klein, 27, Independence, driver of the pickup, suffered the injuries about 9 p.m. Friday when their vehicles collided on Highway 52, approximately four-tenths of a mile east of Route B near Cole Camp.

Klein, who underwent surgery over the weekend to treat his internal injuries, also suffered a fractured pelvis, fractured right hip, and fractured right arm.

Wahlers, who did not undergo surgery, suffered multiple fractures of the ribs, a fractured left arm, and multiple lacerations.

Future activities planned by this group, it was learned, include distributing informational comic books to school students, holding a district-wide poster contest for youngsters and having an annual banquet dinner for all district members which would feature guest speakers.

ICC against shutdown of Penn Central

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission today cautioned a federal judge against ordering a shutdown of the Penn Central Railroad but offered no solution for the carrier's financial woes.

The comments were made in the ICC's long-awaited report, requested last July by U.S. District Court Judge John T. Fullam, who is overseeing Penn Central's reorganization under bankruptcy laws.

The commission said an abrupt shutdown of Penn Central "would have a severe economic effect on the people of the entire northeast sector of the country." In addition, the ICC said, the cessation would have a "ripple effect from coast to coast."

The ICC said it felt Penn Central could be restructured into a viable network railroad if external assistance is provided.

It said it will hold a series of further hearings to determine how much of the railroad's 20,000 miles of track should be utilized, whether such alternative service as trucks would be adequate for some communities, the condition of Penn Central plant and facilities, and the public's willingness to provide financial support.

The hearings also will study methods of reducing labor costs and increasing employee productivity as well as looking into the size of the labor force.

The commission did not say when it would start the hearings but said they would be expedited. It also said it felt the hearings should take up the problems of all railroads in the northeast part of the United States — not just the Penn Central.

Although the commission did not propose a plan to reorganize the financially ailing railroad, it said it was able to "visualize steps in a plan for a restructure and reorganization..." of the railroad. "It should be made clear, however, that this plan contemplates substantial federal-state monetary and other assistance," the ICC said.

The ICC said Penn Central, aided by recently authorized freight rate increases and by the $40 million to $60 million annually in increased revenues from Amtrak, would be able to continue its operations through the first quarter of 1974 and probably through the remainder of 1974.

However, it urged Judge Fullam to allow the carrier to utilize $43 million held in escrow or the interest on those funds and to allow Penn Central to seek additional funds under the Emergency Rail Services Act of 1970.

It also indicated it felt Judge Fullam should develop a program for the management, development and disposition of Penn Central's real estate holdings.

The commission said none of the three plans proposed for reorganizing the Penn Central was sufficient.

Judge Fullam had asked the ICC to look into the three plans and to develop a program to permit continued running of the railroad without eroding Penn Central's financial position.

Otherwise, Judge Fullam said, he would have no choice but to order the railroad shut down. The Philadelphia judge has scheduled a hearing on the Penn Central reorganization for Oct. 12.

Both sides to meet on newspaper strike

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Both sides of the St. Louis newspaper strike were scheduled to meet separately today, following a 12-hour secret negotiating session Sunday.

A spokesman for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch said the results of Sunday's meeting, which was called by Paul Bowers, regional director of the National Mediation and Conciliation Service, were not disclosed.

The spokesman said both sides in the dispute will meet today to evaluate the results of the session.

No word has been released on plans for further joint talks. Mediator Bowers reportedly left St. Louis for Washington early today.

The strike by some 200 Teamsters Union Local 610 dockhands and delivery truck drivers has halted publication of the Post-Dispatch and the St. Louis Globe-Democrat for 41 days.

The central issue in the strike is the use of dockhands at the automated Post-Dispatch plant in St. Louis County.

Informal dinnerware, the rugged heavy table service that may be used indoors and outdoors and goes from freezer to oven to table, is making great inroads into America's entertaining style.

In at least one area of Appalachia, the making of the stoneware has become a tourist attraction, and in six years its manufacture has helped put the depressed area on a better financial footing, observed Nancy Patterson, 46, who began her stoneware enterprise in Laurel Bloomery, Tenn., where the Appalachian Trail runs through the main street.

"In addition to the raw materials available in that part of the United States, the natives are ideal for their jobs. The women have done so much quilting and caning with their hands, they can paint perfect circles and dots freehand even in cups," she explained. In fact all handmade work — shaping on wheels, glaze-dipping and so on — requires little training.

Or a visit to inspect the area with the stoneware business in mind ten years ago, it had been love at first sight, remarked Nancy, who lived there for two years as she sought government loans and working capital from friends. She opened an office in a log cabin and had 400 applicants for 16 jobs. Today there are 60 workers.

Her stoneware is considered unique in the United States. She developed it after sojourns abroad to countries that contributed to her knowledge. As a guest of the famed porcelain factory of Royal Copenhagen in Denmark, she parlayed a month's invitation into a two-year apprenticeship. When her work permit ran out she accepted an invitation from a Finnish stoneware factory where she worked at design for a year and a half. On a back-home tour, she stopped to study Chinese brush work in Taiwan, where she was invited by the Minister of Economics to help establish a dinnerware business for export to the United States. She launched it in 1957, but in 1961 on a visit home, she decided to stay.

Finishing touches

The nonporous high-fired dishwasher-proof stoneware she developed seemed right "for the times." Her gamble paid off. In addition to young people latching on to it, long-time housewives gravitated to it. Last year's sales were up 34 per cent.

Nancy had started making porcelain after attending UCLA and the Los Angeles Art Center College of Design, and she had studied with well-known ceramicist, Albert King, where she learned about Chinese glazes and high-fired porcelain. Some stoneware pieces are shiny, others are matte finished.

Each piece of stoneware is handled 34 times before it is finished. Of her eight patterns — buyers haven't room to stock more — the most popular is a brown and gold one. This year she designed a line of drinking vessels, including a medieval goblet that holds 14 ounces.

But there is more to making stoneware than earth, fire, air and water, she observes, because shapes aren't really traditional, and unlike low-fired earthenware it shrinks 15 per cent in production.

"Everything must balance and be examined for design flaws. A coffee cup goes through rigorous analysis — how does it look when it is full of coffee, how does it appear when you pick up the cup (with big or little fingers), does it burn fingers, will the spoon stay on the saucer without falling off, can you pick up the saucer without tipping the cup. Is the shape appealing?"

Pitchers must be dribble-proof and have the right capacity. As for plates — the knife and fork shouldn't skid off.

Then, too, color has a great deal to do with appetite for food. "There aren't too many colors one can use in stoneware," she explained.

Bumpers can't make ends meet

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with automobile bumpers. I suggest that a national law be passed requiring that all auto bumpers be the same height, front and rear, to eliminate costly damages when cars are bumped. These new spring bumpers are useless if one bumper is 12 inches higher than another. — VERNON, a former member of Fred Waring's band.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — I use carbon paper for transferring patterns of birds, flowers, etc., but did not realize it was so powerful. It did not work on a white corded coat as I had hoped and I had no success trying to remove the lines. Does anyone know of anything that will remove the imprint left by carbon paper? I soaked this in bleach for a long time, but that did no good. Also, is there any special pencil or paper that can be used to make transfers onto black material? — MRS. T.J.

DEAR POLLY — I agree that Mrs. R.J.C. does need another color to pep up that pastel pink and blue bathroom and that color might well be shocking pink. Replace the depressing tan, gray, pink, blue and white wallpaper (above the pink tile) with a splashy floral paper that has lots of large pink roses. Also continue this paper over the ceiling. Cover the floor with a cut-to-fit shocking pink nylon bathroom carpet and even repeat this gay color for towels and perhaps the shower curtain, too. I have seen this happen with just such a blue and pink horror and know shocking pink works wonders. — BURNIECE

DEAR POLLY — Do you take Pointers from men? ((Polly's note — Indeed we do and with the greatest of pleasure). If so, here is one. While doing some concrete work at home, my knees were becoming very sore and tired so I looked around for something to kneel on. There was nothing in sight but a broom and I discovered what a wonderful kneeling pad a broom makes. Try it for I am sure you will like it. — EARL

DEAR POLLY — Save those ties that come around bread, etc., and let pre-school children or any small folks play with them to form numbers or letters. They can have many hours of fun with these colorful pieces that are usually thrown away. — MRS. D.C.

Wonders about restoring party's sanity

WORCESTER, Mass. — When bigwig Democrats started slashing each other again in stupid internecine struggle over who can be a delegate to the party's 1976 national convention, probably no one winced more painfully than Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

For, according to a lot of signs and evidence that one gathers in this state, Ted Kennedy has made up his mind to make an all-out bid for the Presidency in 1976.

And he figures that the biggest obstacle to his success is not the Republican party, or the Kennedy-haters, or Chappaquiddick, but the suicidal impulses within his own party.

I hear it from Bay Staters in a position to know that, despite his mother's uneasiness about the physical dangers involved, Kennedy will move with his wife's enthusiastic support to grab the nomination and national leadership.

And I know beyond doubt that the young Senator is already meeting quietly with people who might have advice on such crucial questions as: "How can I get blacks and other minorities to not demand campaign rhetoric about emotional issues like busing which would only play into the hands of Republicans who want to exploit ignorance and bigotry?"

Kennedy wonders who can educate blacks to play it cool until they get their "known enemies" out of the White House and only then start demanding of a "known friend" the things to which citizenship entitles them.

I don't know who can answer that question, for Kennedy or anyone else, for this is an era when pompous rhetoric is still a lot more popular than pragmatism, and not just among minorities.

The throat-cutting and back-stabbing over delegate selection is just the best-publicized example of the fact that the Democratic party is crowded with people who would rather win the family debate even if it risks losing the war against the real enemy.

This ought to be a time of Democratic rejoicing over a certain 1976 romp back to power. An incumbent President who cannot succeed himself is up to his twitching cheekbone in scandal, corruption, crookedness and plain incompetence.

Two of his former cabinet members are under indictment, the first cabinet officers so distinguished in almost half a century. His two closest White House aides were forced out of office and face possible indictments. His Vice President is under pressure to resign or face indictment for bribery, extortion, tax-evasion and conspiracy in a vast Maryland kickback scheme — unless the Vice President can somehow hide behind the Constitution and a claim he can be punished only after impeachment.

And the President himself is suspected of involvement in the planning and cover-up of assorted Watergate felonies, not to mention embarrassing questions about where he got an unexplained $803,000 that went into the controversial purchases of properties at San Clemente, Calif., and Key Biscayne, Fla.

With the Republicans burdened by this kind of record, the Democrats ought to romp to victory the way the Dallas Cowboys might mow down the team from Turtle Back grade school.

But even as he curses over Nixon's veto of the minimum wage bill, even as he rants over the increasing chaos in the economy, AFL-CIO President George Meany still wants to rule the Democratic party or ruin it. And liberals are dumb enough to let Meany provoke them into being just as absurd.

The Democrats would be idiots to go back anywhere near the days when women, blacks, youth had no meaningful voice in the party. But they would be just as suicidally foolish to say that certain "quotas" of minorities must be maintained, even if it means snubbing elected officials who have worked 50 years for the party in order to seat someone who has hardly hit a lick of work.

Meany vented his arrogance in 1972 and helped reelect Nixon; the price is that thousands of employees must go on working for $1.50, $1.60, $1.70 an hour in New Orleans, El Paso, Tex., Pelham, Ga., the University of Utah, because of a Nixon veto of a higher minimum-wage law.

Minorities exulted over grabbing those convention seats and they, too, eased the way back into power of the most cynically anti-minority administration in well over half a century.

A lot of Democratic hopefuls other than Kennedy must watch their party engage in mayhem and wonder if it can defeat even a GOP as crippled and discredited as the current one.

A conservative view

Only one way open to Spiro

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — The vice president of the United States is receiving a vast deal of advice these days from his lawyers. This may be sound advice as a matter of law, but it is terrible advice in every other respect. Some of us who admire Mr. Agnew are hoping he will suggest to his counselors that they go jump in the nearest lake. They are leading him down a wrong-way ramp.

This is one trouble with lawyers, especially criminal lawyers. They tend to move from one lawfully objective to another. Their first purpose is to see that a client is not indicted. If he is indicted, they work to get the indictment dismissed. If the indictment is not dismissed, they seek to postpone a trial. And so on.

All this is well and good if a client's sole purpose is to stay out of jail. But the vice president's friends cannot believe that his chief purpose is merely to stay out of jail. What he seeks — what he must try to win above all else — is vindication. Without prompt and total vindication, his public career is ended, his reputation ruined.

How can Mr. Agnew seek vindication? It is highly doubtful that he can achieve it through investigation by an unnamed House committee, along the lines he proposed on Tuesday. Surely he will never get there through the smokescreens and dust clouds his lawyers are raising now. Their purpose appears to be to prevent a Baltimore grand jury from even hearing evidence against him. They are arguing that he is immune. Such an argument, if sustained, would chop off the criminal process before it had even begun. The outcome would be hailed as a lawyers' coup, but it would be like the brilliant operation in which the doctors succeeded but the patient died. Mr. Agnew would hold his office; politically speaking, he would lose everything else.

The lawyers' contention, in my own view, is flimsy. They rely upon the last paragraph of Article I, Section 3 of the Constitution. It says, in substance, that if a president or vice president is convicted by the Senate on impeachment, and thus removed from office, "the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law." From this provision, Mr. Agnew's lawyers infer that a vice president cannot be indicted until he is first removed by impeachment.

The argument is unimpressive. It ignores the historic role of a grand jury, which, as Justice Black once remarked, is "not appointed for the prosecutor or for the court, but for the government and for the people." A grand jury, if I am not sorely mistaken, can indict anyone. In the immediate case, by summoning its own witnesses, this grand jury conceivably could find probable cause to believe that the contractors offered bribes, and probable cause to believe that Governor Agnew took them. This would be an indictment. True, the indictment might not stick: The prosecutor could put it in his pocket, or a judge could order it quashed, but the fact of indictment would remain.

The only precedent that comes readily to mind is the precedent of Aaron Burr. While vice president, he killed Alexander Hamilton in a duel. Perhaps he had poor lawyers, but a Bergen County grand jury promptly indicted Burr for murder. No one cited Article I, Section 3.

Forget it, Mr. Agnew, if he wants to remain in public life, must seize the initiative. He tried to do this on Tuesday, in his unprecedented letter to Speaker Albert, but the procedure he has suggested lies in some parliamentary Never-Never Land.

Neither is Mr. Agnew helping his case by permitting his lawyers to file motions attempting to block the grand jury altogether. The vice president unhappily is putting himself in the position of a defendant who stands mute, take the Fifth, or pleads a statute of limitations. In their place, these are all fine defenses, but no such defenses are of much help to a man who seeks vindication.

"I will fight to prove my innocence," Mr. Agnew has said. He has called the charges "damned lies." His admirers — I count myself among them — believe him. We would urge him to demand that the evidence against him be presented promptly and in full to the grand jury; and if indicted, to insist that he be brought to trial at once. In a grand jury's failure to indict or in a trial jury's verdict of not guilty, he would gain his vindication. He is not likely to find it any other way.

Today's thoughts

In that day the Lord God of hosts called to weeping and mourning, to baldness and girding with sackcloth; and behold, joy and gladness, slaying oxen and killing sheep, eating flesh and drinking wine. "Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die." — Isaiah 22:13.

Freedom is the birthright of man; it belongs to him by right of his humanity, insofar as this consists with every other person's freedom. — Immanuel Kant, German philosopher.

$5,000 pay hike

The University of Missouri Board of Curators has approved a $5,000 a year pay boost for C. Brice Ratchford, university president.

Ratchford now receives an annual salary of $42,500. The pay hike for the M.U. president would boost his salary to $47,500 a year. That is $10,000 a year more than the state now pays its governor.

The $5,000 pay hike for Ratchford figures out at almost 12 per cent. That is certainly far in excess of the federal pay hike maximum of 5.5 per cent that government and private businesses are expected to observe.

If Ratchford received this "modest" 12 per cent pay raise every year for another 10 years the state would be paying him $131,718 a year. Even if he received a 12 per cent pay raise only every other year he would be paid $131,718 in 20 years. Ratchford reportedly did not receive a pay raise last year.

At a time when wage and price controls are imposed on the rest of the private economy in an attempt to control inflation, the university is hardly helping to ease inflation with its total $7.3 million pay increase plan for its employees, including the plush $5,000 a year pay hike for Ratchford.

We think most Missourians will agree that a man receiving a state salary of $42,500 a year and a free mansion ought to be able to get by with something less than a $5,000 a year pay hike. (Jefferson City Post-Tribune)

Limitations of toys

Every parent knows that the best way to get baby off to a good start in life is to surround him with a variety of colorful, mobile, noisy toys that will simulate his mental development.

Not so, says a psychologist. "Parents who are purchasing these materials are almost sure to be wasting their money," claims David Elkind of the University of Rochester, N.Y., as quoted by Science News.

This is not to say, he adds, that an infant should be deprived of rattles or mobiles or other toys which he enjoys. The important thing to remember is that the presence of such toys will not make him a genius any more than their absence of will make him an imbecile.

Writing in the American Journal of Diseases of Children, Elkind says that the question of how much heredity contributes to intelligence is unanswerable. However, "Bright children are likely to stay bright unless, for whatever reason, they engage in activities destructive to mental prowess.

"Contrariwise, a youngster with average ability can, by dint of hard work, accomplish a good deal (but) he will never be a genius."

Toys, says Elkind, should be chosen on the basis of their safety and their immediate entertainment value, rather than for their supposed long-range educational benefits. (NEA)

Cabby-turned-spy worked for Nixon

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The Nixon campaign committee recruited a taxicab driver in 1971, turned him into a $1,000-a-month spy and planted him inside Sen. Ed Muskie's campaign headquarters.

The driver, Elmer Wyatt, sneaked memos, schedules, brochures and other material out of Muskie's offices and delivered them to Nixon campaign aides.

The spying operation against Muskie, according to Watergate sources, was conceived by President Nixon's deputy campaign chief Jeb Magruder. He later helped run the "Gemstone" operation, which wound up with the Watergate break-in.

In September, 1971, our sources say, Magruder approached another campaign aide, Kenneth Rietz, and asked him whether he had ever placed a spy in a political opponent's camp.

Although Rietz had engineered the rough-and-tumble victory of Sen. Bill Brock, R-Tenn., over incumbent Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., he replied to Magruder's question with an astonished "No!"

Magruder persisted, and Rietz agreed to look for an undercoverman. He sounded out an ex-FBI agent named John "Fat Jack" Buckley, who had once worked across the hall from him.

In those days, Rietz had been an eager young assistant to Rep. William Steiger, R-Wis., and Buckley had been the chief Republican investigator for the House Labor Committee.

The aristocratic Rietz and the paunchy gunshoe hit it off well and remained in touch. Buckley, though on civil service status with the anti-poverty agency, obligingly recruited Wyatt, a taxi-driving acquaintance, for $500 a month.

Muskie aides remember the cabbie as a willing volunteer who made the dreary 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. mail runs between Muskie's campaign headquarters and his Senate office.

But unknown to the Muskie camp, their cheerful mailman was snapping up documents which he delivered to Buckley. The anti-poverty official then rushed the material to Magruder and, on one occasion, to another Nixon aide, Hugh Porter.

When Rietz was assigned to other duties, the hacker-spy was given two new bosses, G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, who later plotted the Watergate caper. The Nixon forces, meanwhile, were so delighted with Wyatt's espionage that they doubled his salary.

The documents that Wyatt swiped from Muskie headquarters wound up in the hands of Nixon tacticians who used them to undercut Muskie. This may have been one reason Muskie, who had led the pack of Democratic presidential prospects, began to slip in the popularity polls. The Muskie spying was dropped in the Spring of 1972 after Muskie's star faded.

FOOTNOTE: Republican sources, while confirming that Rietz has admitted his role to Watergate investigators in both the Senate and Justice Department, emphasize that he gave strict orders against opening mail or violating other federal laws. Neither Rietz nor Buckley could be reached for comment. My associate Les Whitten located Wyatt who confirmed Buckley had recruited him to procure the Muskie documents but swore he avoided any criminal acts.

AGNEW'S ANGUISH: In his historic appeal to the House to judge his alleged crimes, Vice President Spiro Agnew told Speaker Carl Albert bluntly that he wanted the impeachment hearings to be wide open.

Agnew said he was prepared to look the TV cameras in the eye, if the House wanted to permit the networks to televise the hearings, and give sworn testimony about his conduct.

Sources privy to the secret Agnew-Albert talks say the Vice President was bitter over the Justice Department's handling of the criminal charges against him. He told Albert that he would rather be judged by his political peers than endure the "trial by leak" now going on.

The Agnew who on August 6 told of his "confidence in the criminal justice system of the United States" has completely changed his attitude. He complained to Albert about the "selective information" that is fed to a grand jury and leaked out to the press.

He wanted to assert his constitutional prerogatives not to hide the facts but to bring them out into the open, Agnew argued. He found Albert compassionate but noncommittal. At one point, Albert spoke sympathetically about the strain on the Vice President's family.

After their private session, Albert brought in leaders from both parties to hear Agnew's appeal. The Vice President suggested that a select committee should be established to conduct the impeachment hearings. He said the Judiciary Committee, which normally would hear impeachment charges, is too large and unwieldy.

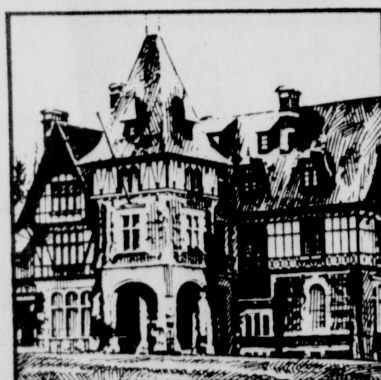

FOOTNOTE: Sources close to Agnew point out that he is the son of a Greek immigrant and that the Republican aristocrats may be seeking to purge him. They note that U.S. Attorney George Beall, who is conducting the Agnew investigation, is a Baltimore Brahmin and that Attorney General Elliot Richardson, who gave the go-ahead, is a Boston Brahmin. But Agnew, in private conversations with friends, rejected this theory. He had no evidence, he said, of ethnic or social snobbery.

Plenty of steam

The first steam-powered automobile in the United States made its appearance around 1892 and had a top speed of 8 miles an hour. By 1906 an American-built Stanley Steamer held the world's speed record for autos — 127 m.p.h.

Many farmers are still leaving a lot of grain in the field. If you are "just average," you leave 10 per cent of your corn and 10 to 15 per cent of your beans or milo. At prices expected for 1973 crops, that could add up to $800 to $1,000 for each 50 acres. Top notch grain men cut losses to a minimum — to 5 per cent or less.

Measure your losses to see how you are doing. Lay a one square foot frame on a half-dozen typical spots and pick up kernels within it. You are losing one bushel per acre for each 1 1/2 to 2 kernels of shelled corn per square foot or 4 to 5 kernels of soybeans or 28 to 30 kernels of milo.

Each ear of corn found in 133 feet of a 40-inch row equals one bushel loss per acre. Check your plant population in corn by counting the stalks in 13 feet of single 40-inch row in several locations.

Soybeans dry rapidly in hot fall weather. Be ready to combine fast when moisture is 13 to 14 per cent. Moisture can drop to 9 per cent in a few days. If beans get too dry and shatter on a hot afternoon, wait until near evening or early next morning. Some harvest at night.

Storage costs
The cost to store will vary with where facilities are located and length of storage. If on-farm bins are available, it will cost about 10 cents per bushel to keep corn for eight months. Costs include: extra handling, losses, insurance and interest on the commodity. Fixed bin costs were not considered. For soybeans stored in existing bins, it will cost about 14 cents per bushel to hold for six months. Commercial storage costs are likely to be higher for the same periods. However, if soybeans are to be held less than four months, commercial storage costs may be less than on-farm costs.

Treated corn
Storage and feeding of high-moisture grain to beef cattle have many attractive features. Field losses are less with early harvest. Ensiled high-moisture grain usually has improved feed value for cattle. A new method of handling wet grain that has attracted much interest is the application of organic acids to prevent spoilage of high-moisture grain stored whole.

Propionic acid or a mixture of propionic and acetic acid is used. Both acids are normal products of digestion and have nutritive value.

According to scientists, the applied acids are absorbed in the grain, and the fertility of the embryo is destroyed and germination is prevented. The acid condition of the grain prevents the growth of bacteria, molds, fungi, and yeasts and thereby keeps the grain from heating or spoiling.

The results of a few trial on the use of fatty acids to preserve high-moisture corn in bin storage for cattle feeding show promise. The feeding value of the acid-treated high-moisture corn appeared to be similar to that of high-moisture ensiled corn.

Grain with 25 to 30 per cent moisture seemed to keep well when 27 to 33 pounds of a mixture of acetic and propionic acid were applied per ton of wet grain. Less pounds are needed when propionic acid only is used.

Costs of 15 to 17 cents a bushel for the acid may erase any improvement in feed value for the treated grain when compared to dry grain.

Safety shoes
Accidents involving the feet and toes account for about one out of every 10 disabling work injuries. In agricultural work, surveys show, the frequency is similar. Farm and ranch workers are also involved in jobs that expose feet to a variety of hazards like dropping heavy materials, getting feet caught under a rotary mower, being stepped on by animals run over by machinery, or stepping on sharp objects.

Boots or rubber shoes with metal box toes are available for work in wet conditions as well as shoes with reinforced insoles and matatarsus and shin protection.

Iron deposits
Excessive red "iron" deposits often occur where a pond serves as the domestic water source. Many inquiries have been received at the University of Missouri from persons confronted with this problem, which seems to be related to the depth at which the water is taken from the pond.

So called "iron" bacteria is an anaerobic organism which exists during warm parts of the year in the lower portion of some ponds. When water containing "iron" bacteria comes into contact with air, it develops the characteristic rust color and stains fixtures, clothing and other items which it contacts.

This problem occurs most frequently when the water intake is near the bottom of the pond. Raising the intake to a level near the surface of the pond usually helps eliminate the problem. The water near the surface is aerobic and will not support anaerobic "iron" bacteria. Shock chlorination of the pond may also provide some relief from the "rust" problem.

Fall fertilization
I have had some calls this week about applying anhydrous ammonia on wheat. When you knife in anhydrous for wheat you need to use 12 inch spacing to prevent streaking in the wheat.

Some fertilizer or blend for bulk spreading is in short supply. I would strongly suggest that you apply all fertilizers that you can this fall for 1974 crops. Supply is short and some prices have increased since spring. Anhydrous ammonia for corn should be applied when the ground temperature at 8 inch depth is 55 degrees or below. This is somewhere near the date of Oct. 20 to Nov. 1 in this area.

Cash rent
A fair price for cash rent depends on the value of the landlord's ownership costs and the maximum amount the tenant can afford to pay based on average yields, production costs and estimated prices.

What is a fair cash rent for 80 bushel corn land worth $500 per acre? The landlord's costs might be similar to these. Interest on investment would be $500 acre land at 6 per cent or $30. The real estate taxes would be near $3 and the land maintenance for the year would be another $3. This would make the landlord's costs or suggested rent per acre at $36.

Now we will estimate the maximum dollars the tenant can afford to pay. Eighty bushel of corn at $1.50 gives us a gross income of $120. Other costs would include: Cash costs $50, fixed machinery costs $12, four hours labor at $2.50 would be $10 and management returns should be 10 per cent of gross or another $14. Total costs for the tenant would be $86 and when we subtract this from $120 gross income the maximum rent the tenant can pay for an average year would be $34 an acre.

The world's largest power station is situated on the Yenisey River in the U.S.S.R. The hydro-electric station generates 6,000 megawatts.

British radio channel turned over to women

LONDON (AP) — "I'm afraid we've made a bit of a mess of this," one novice announcer apologized to her audience as her script bested her. But generally it was smooth listening Sunday as the male-heavy British Broadcasting Corporation handed over one of its four radio channels to women for a "concentrated look at the situation of women in society."

Surrenders in shooting of two men

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A St. Louis County man surrendered to police Sunday in connection with the shooting death of one man and the wounding of another several hours earlier, police said.

James Hauschild, 26, of Glasgow Village was booked suspected of murder and assault with intent to kill in the death of Louis Miller, 27, of Granite City, Ill., and the wounding of James Donovan, 26, of suburban Moline Acres, authorities reported.

Miller and Donovan, who was in satisfactory condition at a city hospital with a gunshot wound in the chest, were shot by a man in a passing car as they stood on a North Side street early Sunday.

Police chased the assailant for several miles before losing sight of his car in south St. Louis County, officials said, but several hours later Hauschild turned himself in.

For more than 16 straight hours, a lineup of women artists, entertainers and government officials confidently described the achievements and problems of women. Conspicuous by their absence were the militant members of the Women's Liberation Workshop, Britain's largest feminist group.

"The day wasn't intended to be an expression of women's lib," explained Susanna Capon, the 29-year-old script editor in charge of Women's Day on the BBC's network. "It was rather a chance to show off women's talents."

The high point of the day's programs was a 40-minute discussion on women's politics between Education Minister Margaret Thatcher, the only woman in Prime Minister Edward Heath's cabinet, and the woman member of the Labor party's shadow cabinet. She is Shirley Williams and it is her job to keep an eye on the Home Office.

Mrs. Thatcher, the mother of twins, has been proposed by some for the prime ministership. She said there is little hope for a woman to reach that office at present.

"There haven't been any women who have come up to the top without being attached to a significant man or without being in right at the beginning of the country's movement," she said.

Mrs. Williams agreed and noted the toughness of life in top-level jobs.

Predict increased beef competition

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — There are signs that U.S. cattlemen may have stiffer competition soon from larger imports of Australian beef, an Agriculture Department report said today.

Earlier this year, Australia diverted much of its export beef to Europe and Japan to take advantage of high prices and big demand in those areas for chilled cuts.

The U.S. market mainly has required low-grade beef for manufacturing purposes such as for hamburger and ordinarily has been the largest outlet for Australian beef in world trade.

Now, the report said, "some normalization" in Australian meat trade is shaping up, meaning that exporters once again are focusing on the U.S. market. Demand in Europe also has slackened, the report said.

"New Zealand, on the other hand, will be easing up on its heretofore large beef and veal exports to the United States," the report said.

The report, published by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service, said drought in New Zealand earlier contributed to a larger cattle slaughter. Along with high prices, that helped boost New Zealand beef exports to the United States.

Beef exports have not been a hot issue in the U.S. cattle industry for some time because of high market prices. Recently, however, cattle prices have tumbled one-third from peaks last summer.

Imports of fresh, frozen and chilled beef, veal, mutton and goat meat have been subject to annual quotas based on U.S. production since 1964. Those restrictions, however, were suspended in June 1972 by President Nixon in a move designed to attract more meat into the country.

The quota law is still on the books and could be reimposed any time the U.S. cattle industry appears threatened by foreign competition.

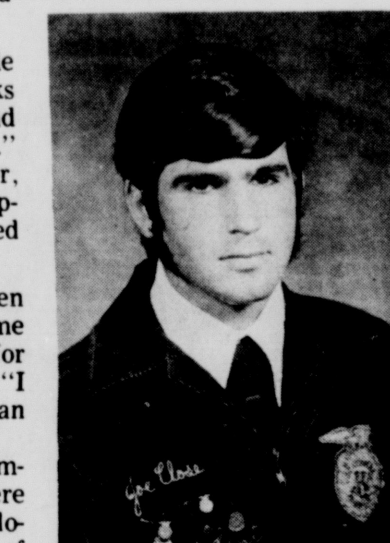

Area farmer nominated for achievement award

Joseph D. Close, a graduate of Green Ridge High School and currently a student in farm management at State Fair Community College, is one of 23 Missouri nominees competing for the American Farmer Degree, the highest degree of achievement awarded by the national Future Farmers of America organization.

Recipients of the award will be announced at the 46th annual meeting of the Future Farmers of America, scheduled involved in a three-way farming partnership with his father and brother in which they share duties supervising a beef cattle and 2,150-acre cropping program.

Close has used many new and improved practices in crop production, including fertilizing according to soil test, using certified seed chemicals and implementing improved practices in harvesting and storing.

Kansas City defense ties up Raiders, 16-3

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs led the American Football Conference's Western Division today but Coach Hank Stram wasn't exactly overwhelmed with joy.

Stram analyzed the Chiefs' 16-3 victory Sunday over the Oakland Raiders and was disturbed by the fact the bitter rivals from the West blocked or partially blocked two of Jan Stenerud's field goal attempts.

"It's sacrilegious to have a great kicker and have him blocked," Stram said. "We're going to be working very, very hard on our blocking for our kicker this week."

Stram said he thinks the Chiefs "are reaching a level of performance. I like to think we're going to pick up the tempo and play better from here on out."

Stram said Kansas City's defense "established itself as super."

Oakland Coach John Madden agreed with Stram that the Chiefs' defense was "real tough. We were beaten by a good football team. I've heard the Chiefs were going down but that's not true. They're No. 1 right now."

Madden said he didn't think the Raiders' upset of the world champion Miami Dolphins a week ago had anything to do with the outcome of Sunday's game.

"I really feel we were ready to play," Madden asserted. "We've played 12 quarters of football, and our offense hasn't scored a touchdown. We have to be more consistent to be a championship football team. We have to iron out our mistakes. None of these things are panic things. The season's only three weeks old."

Stram changed his game plan during the contest.

"When we ran well," he explained, "we didn't feel we had to take chances. The other factor was that not many realize how sore and tender Lenny Dawson's shoulder was. We really went into the game with the anticipation of throwing a lot."

Stenerud, who wiped out Oakland's 3-0 lead and put the Chiefs ahead with field goals of 47, 41 and 29 yards, had one attempt of 19 yards blocked by Bubba Smith early in the fourth quarter. Later in the period, a 42-yard try was tipped by Kelvin Korver at the line.

George Blanda, whose four field goals beat Miami, made good on one of two tries, a 21-yarder that gave the Raiders their lead midway through the second quarter.

Willie Lanier, a linebacker, got the Chiefs' touchdown. He intercepted Ken Stabler's pass with one minute, 52 seconds left and returned it 17 yards.

"That was the only real turning point," concluded Stram. "We'd been dominating but they were still only a touchdown away."

Taylor can't hang on

Kansas City's Otis Taylor (89) has the ball on the tips of his fingers, but can't hang on as Oakland's George Atkinson helps break up a pass from quarterback Len Dawson in the first half of Sunday's NFL game in Kansas City. The Chiefs won, 16-3. (UPI)

Morris sets pace

Miami Dolphins rebound strong against Patriots

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
"If the line has a good day, the back has a good day." With that, Mercury Morris said it all.

The Miami line had a great day...and so did the scrappy little running back for the Dolphins who so often has had to take a back seat to his running mates, Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick.

He scampered for three touchdowns and a team-record 197 yards to lead Miami over the New England Patriots 44-23 Sunday in National Football League play.

"I haven't had those kind of holes since I was in college," said Morris, who shattered the Dolphins' club rushing record, Abner Haynes' 151 yards.

In Sunday's other NFL games, Pittsburgh thrashed Houston 36-7. Los Angeles rocked San Francisco 40-20. Minnesota mauled Green Bay 11-3. Dallas clouted St. Louis 45-10. Cleveland edged the New York Giants 12-10. Buffalo tripped the New York Jets 9-7. Kansas City upset Oakland 16-3. Baltimore beat New Orleans 14-10. Cincinnati topped San Diego 20-13 and Washington belted Philadelphia 28-7. Atlanta is in Detroit tonight.

Seven of the games were sold out and televised locally. They drew 431,727 fans and had a total of 32,022 "no-shows" who bought tickets but didn't attend.

Steelers 36, Oilers 7

"We were able to come up with the big plays defensively and it helped to break the game open in the second half," Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll said after the Steelers, trailing Houston 7-6 at the half, woke up and ran roughshod over the Oilers the rest of the way to win 36-7.

Rams 40, 49ers 20

"When he throws, he hits big," Coach Dick Nolan of the 49ers said of John Hadl, the former San Diego quarterback who has drastically reduced his "mad bomber" style. He had averaged 26 passes per game with the Chargers but has thrown only 36 in three with the Rams, completing 28 of them, five for touchdowns.

Hadl tossed a 39-yard touchdown pass to Harold Jackson and relied heavily on the Rams' rushing attack, which piled up 223 yards en route to the 40-20 victory.

Vikings 11, Packers 3

"They just came at us—they poured in on us," said MacArthur Lane, one of the battered Packers. "We made more mistakes, fumbled and turned the ball over. It turned out to be a battle of field goals and we lost." Fred Cox kicked the three field goals for the Vikings, who also managed a safety to beat Green Bay 11-3.

Cowboys 45, Cards 10

"I still don't know how good we are at this point," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry, despite the Cowboys' 45-10 mangling of the Cards. "If we could win a couple of tough close ones, then this bunch could really be strong at the end."

Browns 12, Giants 10

"Defense is one of the things it takes to make a championship team," Browns' quarterback Mike Phipps said of his teammates. "They played like champions today."

The Giants led 10-0 on a Norm Snead touchdown pass and a Pete Gogolak field goal. But in the second half, Don Cockroft kicked three-pointers of 11, 27, 30 and 10 yards for the 12-10 victory.

Bills 9, Jets 7

John Leypoldt kicked a Buffalo field goal in the first period and another early in the fourth. That seemed to be enough to beat the Jets, but he added another with 1:54 to play—and it's a good thing he did. Al Woodall uncorked a 34-yard scoring pass to Jerome Barkum with two seconds to play to cut the final margin to 9-7.

Colts 14, Saints 10

Lydell Mitchell and Don McCauley each rushed for more than 100 yards in the Colts' 14-10 win over the Saints, prompting rookie Baltimore quarterback Bert Jones to observe: "When you're doing that well, you go with your momentum."

Bears 33, Broncos 14

"We were ready physically, which you have to be against this team," Chicago Coach Abe Gibron said after the Bears beat Denver 33-14.

Bengals 20, Chargers 13

"I don't mean to sound brash, but we feel like we can run the ball against anybody," Cincinnati Coach Paul Brown said after the Bengals' 20-13 victory over the Chargers.

Redskins 28, Eagles 7

"It was a tough decision," said Washington Coach George Allen. "It was nip-and-tuck all week. I didn't make up my mind until Saturday morning." That's when he chose Sonny Jurgensen to start at quarterback in place of Billy Kilmer.

The 39-year-old Jurgensen, making his first start since suffering an Achilles tendon tear last Oct. 29, threw two touchdown passes to wide receiver Charley Taylor in the Redskins' 28-7 victory over the Eagles.

Ralph Houk quits Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — With the familiar cigar in his hand but an uncharacteristic tear in his eye, Ralph Houk shouldered the blame Sunday for the collapse of the New York Yankees and resigned as manager with two years left on his contract.

The 54-year-old Houk told the players of his decision following an 8-5 loss to Detroit that ended the most disappointing season in his 11 years as manager of the once mighty Yankee dynasty.

Then, still wearing his uniform with the famed pinstripes, Houk made his surprise announcement in an emotional news conference on a day already dripping with nostalgia as the Yankees prepared to leave historic 50-year-old Yankee Stadium for two years while a $24 million modernization program takes place. They will spend 1974 and 1975 in Shea Stadium, home of the New York Mets.

"I made my decision for the good of the ballclub," said Houk, who began the season with a team favored to win the American League's East Division but finished a plummeting fourth, 17 games behind Baltimore, after leading at the All-Star break in late July.

"I've been thinking about it and I made the decision four or five days ago," Houk went on, his voice choking on almost every word to the amazement of those who knew him as the fiery, quick-tempered ex-war hero known throughout the baseball world as "The Major."

"I'm doing this for one reason," he went on. "We've won pennants here, but it's been a little rough since 1966. You keep thinking that this year you're going to do it and you don't do it. You can't work that long in one place with the feeling that you haven't quite got there."

After managing in the minors for three years and serving as a Yankee coach under Casey Stengel for three more, Houk succeeded Stengel as manager of the Yankees in 1961 and won three straight pennants, plus world championships the first two years. He became general manager in 1964.

"Baseball has given me everything I've got," Houk said. "It's raised my family. The Yankees have meant more to me than anything in my whole life. Baseball is all I know. It was a tough decision, but a man has to go with his convictions. I don't blame anyone but myself for this season."

The players, who loved him because he never rapped their shortcomings, saw it in a different light.

"We let ourselves down, we let our families down, we let him down," said shortstop Gene Michael. Pitcher Fred Beene said it was "like losing a father."

Ironically, some of the 32,238 fans on hand Sunday held up signs reading "Fire Houk" and

"Houk Must Go." And he was roundly booed when he went to the mound to remove pitcher Lindy McDaniel during a six-run battering in the eighth inning.

Paul Schaal would reach the 1,000 game mark at third base in 1973. He needs to play 133 games at that position to reach the plateau.

Another $5,000. His runner-up check for $5,000 made him the day's biggest winner.

Bobby Allison placed third in a Chevrolet, Buddy Baker was fourth in a Dodge, and fifth place went to Jack McCoy, paying a visit to the East after clinching the West Coast stock car championship.

Petty's elapsed time was 3 hours, 48 minutes, 51 seconds. "I guarantee you, no bricklayer who works 60 hours a week can match my aching back," Petty said as he climbed into his sleek Chrysler Imperial and headed for Charlotte, N.C., where there is a 500-miler waiting next weekend.

Bruised Detroit hosts hungry Atlanta Falcons

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Lions are hoping to have at least one wounded regular, safety Mike Weger, ready for duty for tonight's National Football League clash with Atlanta.

Weger, who missed the first two games of the season with a sprained ankle, took a full turn in the last big defensive workout in preparation for the nationally televised game.

"It's getting better," Weger said of the ankle, which had kept him on crutches.

"Maybe he'll play," said Coach Don McCafferty. "It's about time. For a long time it didn't seem to improve."

But there are others in the hospital ward: offensive left tackle Jim Yarbrough, out with an ailing knee, defensive back Rudy Redmond, who has a torn Achilles tendon, defensive back Wayne Rasmussen, suffering from a broken arm, and Miller Farr, another member of the knee injury squad.

"We've still got good guys back there," McCafferty said of his patched up defensive unit, which includes former Falcon Willie Germany, Levi Johnson, Jim Thrower and one-time college running back Dick Jauron.

Atlanta Coach Norm Van Brocklin, once one of the league's premier quarterbacks, and the Falcons' present quarterback Dick Shiner are sure to try to take advantage of the inexperienced secondary.

"The Falcons probably will come in with blood in their eyes" after being shut out 31-0 by Los Angeles last week, McCafferty said. "They obviously had an off day. They ran up 62 points the previous week (against New Orleans)."

The temerity of what McCafferty once labeled an explosive offense has him almost as worried as does the frailty of the defense.

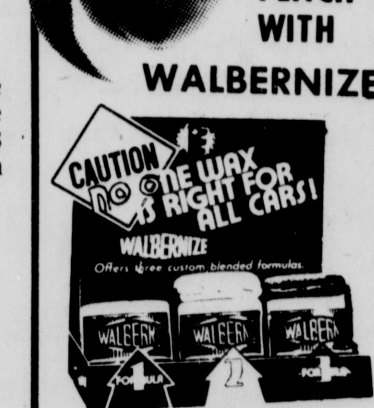

The offense, rated as one of the most potent in the league with the passing and running of quarterback Greg Landry and the running of Steve Owens and Albie Taylor, has produced only 23 points in two games. The points came in a 24-10 loss to Pittsburgh and a 13-13 tie with Green Bay.

Darrell Johnson replaces Kasko

BOSTON (AP) — Darrell Johnson has been named to manage the Boston Red Sox next season, after Eddie Kasko, who led Boston to second place finishes the last two years, was fired Sunday.

The announcement of Kasko's release was made by owner Tom Yawkey and General Manager Dick O'Connell before the start of the Red Sox' final game.

New York needs only one victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
The New York Mets will have to wait another day and Atlanta's Hank Aaron will have to wait another season. It was Never On Sunday for both baseball phenomena.
The Mets failed to win the National League East pennant after splitting a doubleheader with the Chicago Cubs and Aaron missed a chance to tie Babe Ruth's famous home run mark in a busy final Sunday.
"We're going to win this thing because we've got the pitching and the defense," said New York left fielder Cleon Jones after the Mets clinched at least a tie for the East flag with a 9-2 victory in Sunday's second game. The Mets lost the opener 1-0.

The Mets, once 12 games behind in last place this season, can win the elusive pennant today by beating the Cubs in one game of their makeup doubleheader. They're counting on ace Tom Seaver in the opener.
The second-place St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 3-1 on the last day of their regular season and moved within one game of the top.
The third-place Pittsburgh Pirates also stayed alive, but just barely, with a 10-2 romp over the Montreal Expos. The Pirates also have a makeup date today, playing the San Diego Padres at home.
While all this madness was going on, Aaron took some of the play away from the hottest pennant race in National League history.

The Atlanta star, one shy of Ruth's monumental career home run total of 714, had four opportunities to match the record but didn't make it. He singled three times in four appearances as the Braves lost a 5-3 decision to the Houston Astros.
In the only other National League game, the San Francisco Giants beat the Cincinnati Reds 4-3.
Chicago won the opening game with the Mets on Ron Santo's run-producing single in the eighth inning with two out. In the second game, New York leftfielder Cleon Jones hit a two-run homer and made two outstanding catches.

Wayne Garrett of the New York Mets is safe at the plate as Chicago catcher Ken Rudolph tries to catch the ball in the first inning of the second game at Wrigley Field Sunday. Cleon Jones hit a grounder to third baseman Ron Santo, who was charged with an error on his throw to the plate. Rusty Staub also came home on the error. The Mets clinched at least a tie for the National League Eastern Division crown with a 9-2 win. They lost the opening game of the doubleheader, 1-0. (UPI)

Big Eight runs non-conference

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Big Eight Conference football championship begins to take shape Saturday.
Coach Earle Bruce, who says his Iowa State team has its eye on the title, prepares the Cyclones for this week's invasion by the Buffaloes of Coach Edie Crowder, who isn't saying anything about championships or bowl games or ratings.
The game between the Cyclones and the Buffs at Ames, Iowa kicks off the new conference campaign. Nebraska won the crown last season when Oklahoma had to forfeit four contests because the Sooners, currently ranked eighth, were placed on probation.
All of the other Big Eight teams will be attempting to improve on the league's 18-3-1 record against outsiders. Four of them have 3-0 marks.
The second-ranked Cornhuskers, given their second straight scare Saturday before they finally overcame Wisconsin 20-16, travel to Minnesota for their first test on the road.
The Kansas Jayhawks, also 3-0, who knocked off Minnesota 34-19 last weekend, journey to Memphis, Tenn., to battle ninth-ranked Tennessee, and the 12th-ranked Oklahoma State Cowboys, who battered Southern Illinois 70-7, face Texas Tech at home.
The Missouri Tigers, ranked 20th and fresh from a 27-14 triumph over North Carolina, seek victory No. 4 at Southern Methodist.
Oklahoma, after playing to a 7-7 tie with top-ranked Southern California, opens its home stand against Miami, Fla. Kansas State, a 17-0 victor over Tampa, tackles Memphis State at Manhattan, Kan. The Sooners are 1-0-1 and the Wildcats 2-1.
Iowa State, 1-1, suffered its first defeat Saturday, losing 21-19 to Arkansas. Colorado, displaying its best offense of the season in a 52-28 victory over Baylor, is 2-1.
Dave Humm threw two touchdown passes in Nebraska's victory in a game in which the lead changed hands four times in the last quarter. Kansas got three touchdowns from Delvin Williams on runs of 9, 12 and 1 yard. Oklahoma State, held to a 14-7 lead at the half, erupted for five touchdowns in the third period.
Missouri's John Cherry gave the Tigers a two-touchdown lead by throwing two payoff pitches in the first quarter. Steve Davis made the two-yard TD run that gave Oklahoma its chance to tie the Trojans.
Davis said after the game: "They're not No. 1. They're definitely behind us. I don't know who is ahead of us but they're not."
Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said the Sooners "won in every phase except the kicking game. We played well enough in the second half that we Kansas State took a 3-0 lead into the last period against Tampa but breathed easier after Mike Weicker picked up a blocked punt and returned it five yards for a touchdown. Colorado's sophomore quarterback, Clyde Crutcher, threw two quick touchdown passes against Baylor.

Wayne Stanley, the Iowa State quarterback, gave the Cyclones a chance to tie the Razorbacks when he ran a yard for a touchdown with 1 minute 24 seconds left but his pass to Mike Strachan on a two-point play effort was batted down.
Aside from the Iowa State-Colorado conference squabble, Saturday's top game is probably Kansas' big test against Tennessee.
"There is no doubt but that Tennessee is one of the great powers in the country," says Jayhawk Coach Don Fambrough, "but I'm not going to think about Tennessee until Monday morning."

Vikes roll over Tarkio

MIAA teams continue poor non-loop showing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association football teams continued to look unimpressive against nonconference foes Saturday while Missouri Valley and William Jewell of the Heart of America conference served notice they are powers to be reckoned with.
Missouri Valley bowled over Tarkio 63-0 and William Jewell topped College of Emporia 25-0 in HOA conference games.
Missouri-Rolla stopped Missouri Southern 16-0 and Southeast Missouri cruised past Evansville, Ind., 28-6 to be the only MIAA teams to register victories.
Results involving other MIAA teams: Illinois State 20, Southwest Missouri 3; State College of Arkansas 19, Northeast Missouri 0; Arkansas Tech 27, Lincoln University 13, and Mankato, Minn., State 30, Northwest Missouri 14.

Central Methodist, the only other Missouri entrant in the HOA, scored an upset 17-14 decision over Ottawa in a conference opener.
Among independent teams Culver-Stockton downed Benedictine 39-6, while Washington University of St. Louis tied Southwestern of Memphis 24-24 and Missouri Southern dropped a 16-0 decision to Missouri-Rolla. Missouri Western's game at Doane, Neb., was postponed.
Missouri Valley fullback Kevin Hamill scored three touchdowns in seven minutes of the second quarter, a period in which the Vikings racked up 36 points in their bombardment. Slotback Stan Jones scored twice in the contest.
William Jewell was opportunistic as the Cardinals turned two fumbles and a pass interception into touchdowns. Weader Millentree scored twice on runs of four and six yards.

Both Missouri Valley and William Jewell are 1-0 in the Heart of America Conference and 4-0 over-all.
Culver-Stockton's Doug Wilson passed for three touchdowns, two of them to Mark Stephens. Brent Jones added another TD on a 56-yard punt return for the Wildcats, 2-3.
Missouri-Rolla scored twice in the first half to post its first victory of the campaign. Kenton Hupp crossed the end zone on a four-yard run and Keith McGuire gathered in a nine-yard TD pass from Rick LaFollette.

Texas trims Royals in season's finale

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Pete Broberg pitched a seven hit shutout to win his first game since June 18 Sunday night and, as a result, the Texas Rangers showed a slight improvement from 1972 to 1973.
The Texans' 3-0 win over Kansas City gave the Rangers a 57-105 record for the 1973 season and a winning percentage of .352. A year ago the Rangers were 54-100 for a winning percentage of .351.
Manager Billy Martin was gratified with Broberg's performance.
"He pitched very well. This is the kind of game that builds confidence. He can go home over the winter with a positive attitude now and that's most important," said Martin, who replaced Whitey Herzog as the Rangers' manager Sept. 8.

Broberg struck out eight and walked only two in running his record to 5-9. Steve Mingori, 3-3, made his first major-league start and took the loss, allowing three runs, eight hits and one walk in seven innings. He struck out seven.
Dave Nelson's double and Jeff Burroughs' single staked Broberg to a 1-0 lead in the first and Tom Grieve and Dave Nelson added solo homers for the final margin.

Lifts average to .301

Aaron fails to get 714

ATLANTA (AP) — Henry Aaron's relentless pursuit of Babe Ruth's all-time home run record was postponed Sunday when the icy-nerved 39-year-old slugger failed to connect for the distance in the final game of the 1973 season.
"I am disappointed, yes, but I feel like I've got all year and all winter to go home and rest up," he said. "The last month has been really tiresome."
"I'm just happy to look back on a good year. I hope for the same type of year next year, so it'll be a great winter."
Aaron had moved to the threshold of the legendary Ruth's mark of 714 when he drilled his 40th of the year and 713th lifetime over the center field fence Saturday night off left-hander Jerry Reuss of the Houston Astros.
A season-high crowd of 40,517 poured into Atlanta Stadium despite threatening skies Sunday, hoping to see baseball history in the making.
Instead, they saw one of the game's all-time great hitters rap three consecutive singles off Houston southpaw Dave Roberts before going out on a soft liner to second baseman Tommy Helms in his final at bat of the year, off reliever Don Wilson in the eighth inning.
Aaron, who also had three straight hits in Saturday night's game, thus lifted his season batting average to .301.

As he trotted to left field for the ninth inning, the crowd rose with thunderous applause.

The ovation lasted about three minutes, and was still going when the umpires ordered the first pitch of the inning to Houston's Greg Gross.

"The greatest thing that happened to me today was getting that ovation," Aaron said. "I'm just sorry I wasn't able to hit a home run."
Aaron said he was determined to hit No. 714, that he had no intention of collecting those singles. "But I got only one good pitch all day and it fooled me. I was looking for a change-up from Roberts in the first inning and he threw me a fast ball right down the middle."
Asked about the pressure, the soft-spoken Alabama native said, "There was not as much today as yesterday (Saturday). I felt an awful lot then because I felt like I almost had to hit one to have a chance to tie it today." Aaron said he hoped to take a long fishing trip later this week, spend a few days with his parents in Mobile, Ala., and then go on to the World Series where he is scheduled to throw out the first ball.
His winter calendar also includes wedding plans—the date not yet announced. He is to marry Billy Williams, a local television personality.
Then, he can think of next year and Babe Ruth.
"I hope I hit it (714) here in Atlanta, but I'll do the best I can regardless of where I play," he said.

Hank Aaron... looking forward to '74

Oswald: "We have had so many questions about the Jacoby transfer bid that some articles on it should be appropriate."

Jim: "Dave Carter of St. Louis was the first man to conceive the transfer idea. It is not certain who started two-level transfers, but there is no question that you developed the bid and are responsible for its great popularity."

Oswald: "I am inclined to think the bid made itself popular. It is artificial but is so easy to learn that anyone can use it and profit from its use. Today's hand is a good example. Either North or South will have no trouble making four spades and if declarer stops to ruff one of North's diamonds with one of South's three trumps he will make an overtrick at his four-spade contract."

Jim: "The problem is how to get there after the no-trump opening. It is easy with Jacoby transfer. North's two-heart bid guarantees at least five spades and asks South to bid spades. South does this and North re-bids to two no-trump. He has told partner that he holds at least five spades, 8, 9 or maybe 10 high card points and a balanced hand."

Oswald: "South has a near maximum no-trump with good spades and jumps to the spade game. With a minimum he might pass or bid three spades. With poorer spades he might bid three no-trump."

Ann Landers

Tall girl has unusual problem

Dear Ann Landers: I am 5 feet 10 in my stocking feet, which is pretty tall for a girl. During my adolescence I felt like a giraffe, but Mom kept at me to stand straight and be proud of my height. Even though I was taller than most of the boys in my classes, it never bothered me much.

I'm not going to ask the obvious question — what to do about a short boyfriend (my sweetheart is 6 foot 4 inches and he has a great build). The problem is that whenever I go where there is music, every short guy in the place rushes over and wants to dance with me. I feel ridiculous with those saved-off runs who seem to enjoy resting their heads on my bosom. (I feel like a nursing mother.)

How can I get out of it without offending the half-pints? — Mt. Shasta

Dear Shasta: Where's your sense of humor? If those shorties didn't think you were a real doll they wouldn't ask you to dance. If THEY feel comfortable about it, consider it a warm compliment and enjoy the fun.

Dear Ann Landers: You've let waitresses sound off, as well as sales clerks, secretaries, bosses, customers — just about everybody. Now it's my turn.

In many small cafes it isn't possible to have an automatic dishwasher, so the job is done by real, honest-to-goodness, live people. Any dishwasher will tell you that if he turns his back for a few minutes the dishes multiply like rabbits.

Most dishwashers get the same salary as waitresses but no tips. I realize it isn't practical to suggest that people go to the kitchen and tip the dishwasher, but I DO have a few suggestions that would make our lives a lot easier.

Use ashtrays. Don't mash your cigarettes or cigars into the leftover food. It makes a terrible mess.

Don't put chewing gum on your plate. It's murder to get off if another plate is stacked on top of it.

Don't put crumpled paper napkins in a plate that has syrup or honey on it. It sticks like glue.

If you ask a waitress to wash a thermos jug or a baby's bottle, the dishwasher is the one who will be doing it. Give HIM the dime or whatever. — Nebraska

Dear Neb: Thanks for the suggestions. You've educated a lot of people today, including me.

Dear Ann Landers: A recent letter from a 17-year-old girl who had VD prompted me to write this letter. Illinois has had in operation for several months "VD Checkline," a statewide, toll-free telephone service which has helped thousands of people. A similar service is offered in other states.

The phones are manned by high school and college volunteers who are trained to respond to questions pertaining to VD treatment centers, etc.

Anyone in Illinois who needs such help should call 1-800-252-8989 between 8:30 a.m. and 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 12 noon until 5 p.m. on Saturdays. (No one will ask your name or age.)

Please urge your readers to call us if they want information or directions. — Robert C. Griffin, V.D. Program, Dept. Public Health, Springfield, Ill.

Dear Mr. Griffin: Since gonorrhea is second only to the common cold in infectious diseases in the United States (and syphilis is not far behind), I appreciate the opportunity to publicize this service. (P.S. I called the number myself to check the caliber of phone personnel and I can report that it is superb!)

Starting over

Air Force Col. Kile D. Berg, Seattle, who spent more than seven years in a North Vietnam prison, says he is beginning life anew in his marriage to Mary Marquis, mother of an 11-year-old daughter. Berg's first wife divorced him soon after his return to the U.S. and has custody of their 11 and 12-year-old sons. (UPI)

Sharp contrast seen in prisons

RAMLE, Israel (AP) — A simple wire fence surrounds Massayahu Prison here. There's no evidence that guards carry guns. The prisoners sprawl out on the lawn in free time and gaze at the sky.

One of the prisoners was asked why inmates don't break out of the place in large numbers.

"Where would we run?" he replied. "This is a small country. They would find you and have you in 'The Safe' within 48 hours."

You can see "The Safe" across the way.

"Massayahu is a Garden of Eden compared to that," the prisoner said.

"The Safe" is Ramle Prison, Israel's most heavily guarded lockup. It holds 600 prisoners. Nazi war criminal Adolf Eichmann was kept there before he was hanged in 1962. Kozo Okamoto, the surviving Japanese terrorist involved in the Lod International Airport massacre in 1972, is serving a life term there.

Ramle also holds dozens of Arab guerrilla infiltrators.

Massayahu, a "semiopen" or minimum security prison, is only a few hundred yards from Ramle, but the two are as different as good and evil.

The prisons were recently visited by a group of international criminologists accompanied by a newsmen.

Ramle is encircled by seemingly unscalable high walls topped by barbed wire and patrolled by armed guards. More barbed wire fences surround the walls.

Visitors pass through at least a half-dozen locked gates before seeing a prisoner.

The 350 inmates of Massayahu live in small buildings ringing an open yard.

But even the sky is rarely seen from inside "The Safe."

Prison Commissioner Arye Nir says no one has escaped from Ramle Prison in 13 years.

Prisoners in Israel are interviewed by a classification board when they first enter the penal system, officials explained. Those sentenced to less than five years have a chance to move into the "easy jail."

Others go to one of 14 other Israeli penitentiaries, but may be transferred to Massayahu after serving part of their terms.

Even "lifers" may eventually work their way into the open camp, Nir said.

Israel holds 4,400 prisoners, half of them Arab guerrillas, he said.

Inmates in Massayahu are eligible for weekend leaves of up to 96 hours every three months. Many go home for religious holidays and almost all return on time, the officials said.

Inside Ramle, the corridors are narrow and divided every few yards by more locked doors. The walls, painted in green and white, are chipped and pitted in many places. The courtyards seen by the visitors where the prisoners exercise or play basketball are covered by wire netting like bird cages at the zoo.

The cells appeared to allow in little outside light, although the ones seen were clean and seemingly comfortable. They vary in size with eight persons sleeping in the largest room seen. Doors are kept locked.

Knob Noster homecoming queen crowned

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KNOB NOSTER — The homecoming queen was crowned Friday at a half time ceremony here during the football game between the Knob Noster Panthers and Butler Bears. Knob Noster defeated the Bears 15-0.

Miss Debbie Grooms, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Grooms, was crowned by last year's queen, Mrs. Debbie Herrin Reppert. Miss Grooms, a Knob Noster senior, also received a chrysanthemum bouquet from Miss Gina Smith, chairman of the queens committee. The queen's escort was Mike Porter, also a senior.

Miss Grooms' attendants were Miss Robbie Bruno, a Knob Noster freshman; Miss Carla Emig, sophomore; and Miss Barbara Brackett, junior. Miss Marty Parker was chosen the football team's candidate.

A homecoming dance was held after the game, and homecoming activities were directed by the Knob Noster High School Student Council.

Committee is divided over delegate quotas

GAITHERSBURG, Md. (AP) — The committee drafting delegate selection rules for the 1976 Democratic convention has divided sharply over how to replace the controversial 1972 quotas.

It was unable to resolve the issue at the final session of a three-day meeting here Sunday and said it would try again next weekend when it hopes to complete its work.

The panel voted tentatively 8 to 5 to remove the special consideration for women, minorities and young people as an encouragement to representative convention delegates. However, the absence of three members made it uncertain whether that vote would stand up next week.

And, whatever the drafting committee decides, the quotas seemed certain to be fought over when the new rules are considered Oct. 27 by the full 73-member commission and early next year by the Democratic National Committee.

Baltimore councilwoman Barbara Mikulski, who heads both the drafting committee and the full commission, said she is confident that the commission can come up with rules that are "fair, work in the best interest of the party and are understood."

However, William DuChesi, secretary-treasurer of the Textile Workers Union, said the weekend had demonstrated the accuracy of his contention that the committee and the full commission are "absolutely stacked" against organized labor and party regulars.

"We'll have a lot of nice language but we'll have no votes in '76," he said. "We'll have '72 being repeated unless some cool heads prevail."

Both sides in the quota controversy agreed that the rules should specifically bar quotas.

However, they disagreed over whether the provision requiring programs against discriminatory practices should refer to the need for participation of "traditionally under-represented groups," a phrase designed to cover women, racial minorities and youths.

Gov. John J. Gilligan of Ohio sought to eliminate the more specific language with a phrase encouraging participation "by all Democrats."

A move by Jane Solomon of New Hampshire to include both phrases was rejected 7 to 5, and the committee then endorsed the Gilligan language 8 to 5.

The only black member present, Lavonia Allison of North Carolina, abstained, and black Mayor Richard G. Hatcher of Gary, Ind., and Edward Donahue, a union official, were absent.

Classes include floats, walking entries, cars or vehicles and equestrian units.

Rash of corporate takeovers unlikely

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Many of the conditions that can lead to a rash of corporate takeovers are present in the economy, but an additional element makes them unlikely and maybe impossible.

Hundreds of companies are weak and appear easy candidates for being swallowed by larger corporate animals. But the extra ingredient is that those larger firms are too weak to do so.

A major accounting firm, Coopers & Lybrand, has issued a reminder to its clients that lists the major characteristics of being a potential target.

The first of these is a low price-earnings ratio, a common problem today. Hundreds of companies are complaining that the price of their shares is only nine or 10 times earnings, when in more normal times it might be 12 to 18.

In many instances, the total value of shares is less than book value, which means the acquiring company obtains a gift. A sampling of 81 target firms from 1956 to 1965 showed 54 per cent had inordinately low market prices.

Poor performance and declining earnings, another common complaint, also was listed as a danger signal, especially if it appears to result from poor management. An enterprising competitor might feel it can raise earnings quickly and make itself an easy buy.

A moribund investment policy, characterized by surplus liquid assets, is another telltale sign. An acquisition-minded company looks upon such assets as a potential homebuyer would look upon a property that had an attic full of gold coins.

In some instances, the takeover of such properties is amazingly easy. The potential buyer simply makes a tempting offer to shareholders in the company and finances the purchase with the company's funds.

Such a takeover is made easier if the company's shares are concentrated in relatively few hands, as are the shares of many companies today.

Unused debt capacity is roughly equivalent to having surplus liquid assets, since debt can be used as effectively as cash by an acquiring company that has set its sights on even greater growth.

While many American companies with a reputation for takeovers are stymied temporarily by their own depressed price-earnings ratios, European companies are stepping up their activities in the United States.

Cash-rich because of the enormous outflow of dollars during the past 20 years, they are able to step in with relatively lush offers to shareholders.

Because of their vulnerable condition, many American companies have embarked on a program of arousing the enthusiasm of individual investors, who largely have been absent from the market during the past two or three years.

The theory is that there are millions of potential investors around the country who could be induced into the market, helping boost prices and lessening the possibility of a takeover.

Board vacates suspension

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The suspension of Dr. John H. Tietjen, president of Concordia Seminary, has been "vacated without prejudice" by the St. Louis County seminary's board of control.

In a special meeting over the weekend, the board voted to rescind its Aug. 18 decision to suspend Tietjen and asked that the seminary president meet again with the two pastors who had filed charges against him.

Tietjen came under fire at the summer convention of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod when the Revs. Leonard P. Buelow of Green Bay, Wis., and Harlan L. Harnapp of North Platte, Neb., charged him with deviating from teaching true church doctrine at the seminary. Those charges led to Tietjen's suspension.

The decision to vacate the suspension came Saturday after the church's commission on constitutional matters reported the board had the authority to suspend the seminary president but cited another bylaw that those charged should be "treated in the spirit of Christian love."

The board also decided to investigate the Fund for Lutheran Theological Education, Inc., which "could be duplicating to some degree or competing with the objects and purposes of the Synod itself," according to the resolution.

The board said all of the corporation's members are on the seminary faculty. A report on the inquiry will be made at the board's Oct. 15 meeting.

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Veteran's mental health is problem

Dear Dr. Lamb — My husband and I are concerned about whether or not we are doing all we can for our son.

He was discharged with honors after four years of active duty in the Navy during the Korean War. Shortly afterwards he broke down completely with what was diagnosed by one of our leading psychiatrists as paranoid schizophrenia.

During all these intervening years we have tried everything, and, as far as we know, there is nothing else left to try. There is no use going into the agonies of the situation and the impossibilities of trying to live with him because of his violence. He also has a drinking problem (they say he is not an alcoholic) that greatly aggravates his condition. After trying countless times to make a home for him (he has been in and out of mental institutions of all kinds), we have now been forced to abandon him to the veterans hospital. Yet, we still have hope that something can be done because he seems so rational so much of the time. His worst times are when he is under the influence of large amounts of beer or stronger liquor.

My question is, is there a place that might be able to help him that we do not know about — such as a particular medical center that you know about? Or do you think everything is done that can be done for such patients in veterans and state hospitals for the mentally ill? He has been in a private institution for only short periods, and that was quite expensive. We do not have a lot of money but we are willing to spend what little we have if it would restore him to health.

Dear Reader — Schizophrenia is so varied that I couldn't possibly comment on a case without knowing the details, and the outlook is unpredictable from one case to another.

It sounds as if you have had a variety of professional evaluations of your son's problems, and, apparently, most of the specialists who have seen him have agreed generally with the diagnosis.

No, I don't think everything is being done that could be done in either our state hospitals or in the veterans hospitals, particularly for the mental illness problems. But, for the amount of money available and the trained personnel available, it is pretty good. I doubt you will be able to get any better treatment that would have a significant effect on your son's future. There are no great secrets to treating these problems that wouldn't be known to a competent psychiatric staff in any fairly large hospital facility.

I really wish I had something to offer so many people who are faced with this problem when mental illness strikes. Perhaps just telling you that chasing after a new opinion or a false hope will be more of an exercise in futility and heartbreak than a reward for your efforts will help you avoid that pitfall. Try to protect your own, and your husband's, well-being at this point rather than exhaust your few resources. You may need these for yourselves for something you can do something about later.

Fancy hall adds glamour to weddings

BUDAPEST (AP) — A "sample wedding ceremony" for a young local council official and his bride was staged recently in a rebuilt medieval knights' hall of Budapest's historic Buda Castle, now converted into a grand "wedding chamber" to add more glamor and solemnity to civil (non-religious) wedding ceremonies.

The sumptuously furnished baroque wedding chamber has wainscoted walls and is lit by a resplendent Venetian chandelier.

Laszlo Tordi, 24, wed Miss Angela Szorenyi, 19, in all splendor. Mendelssohn's Wedding March was a discreet background music while the registrar made a short speech calling on them to make each other happy, keep the family bonds intact, and become good citizens of Hungary.

Tordi had the opportunity to give the chamber a tryout as he is a high official of the local council's planning section.

The new wedding chamber, outdoing the existing two by far in splendor, was inaugurated within the framework of the current 100th anniversary of the union of Buda and Pest into a single city, and the capital of Hungary.

The new establishment offers newlyweds a tape of the complete wedding ceremony to take home as a souvenir.

All Hungarian citizens are required by the law to wed before a local council registrar, and the document he issues makes matrimony valid. Although no figures are available and church authorities are also tight-lipped about numbers, couples who stage additional church weddings are believed to be between 15 to 20 per cent.

Hospital waiting room deaths go unnoticed

MIAMI (AP) — Volton Jordan and Clarence Brinson were critically ill, homeless and penniless. They died sitting in wheelchairs in a hospital emergency ward, and no one noticed for hours.

Hospital officials said both men had been dead for several hours before someone noticed them slumped over in their wheelchairs this past week.

Brinson and Jordan, like many other destitute and elderly people, had been brought to the busy corridors of Jackson Memorial Hospital to wait until nursing home space could be found.

"There is no dignity for these people," a Jackson Hospital administrators said. "They are a forgotten breed. They have no place to go. This is their home until they find a place."

Officials said Brinson, 54, had been waiting three days in the hospital. Jordan, 60, had been sitting in his wheelchair for two days. A medical examiner said Jordan died last Friday of heart disease, with other complications. He said Brinson died last Tuesday of chronic pulmonary disease.

Ten patients like Brinson and Jordan were waiting at the hospital Sunday.

They are indigent elderly, dependent upon public money. They are put in wheelchairs in the hospital's emergency ward, brought there from private homes and residential hotels to wait for admittance to nursing homes that will accept welfare patients.

Officials say that process normally takes two or three days. It can be longer. The patients sit and wait until a home is found.

"We consider them boarders rather than patients," hospital spokesman Bill Keck said of the welfare patients. "They are in wheelchairs because we have no beds to admit them."

"Nurses and nurse assistants feed them three times a day and care for any other needs that boarders may request."

Keck said he knew of no other cases like Brinson and Jordan in which patients had died in their wheelchairs and gone unnoticed for several hours.

Officials say finding nursing home beds for the indigent is becoming more difficult because many homes say they can't afford to keep patients for the $13.50 a day the county pays them.

They said the 10 patients who were waiting Sunday for a nursing home bed is about the average number of welfare "boarders" at the hospital. Earlier this year it was worse.

At one time about 30 "boarders" were stacked up in the waiting room. That problem was solved when the county raised from $11.50 to $13.50 the daily allowance it would pay nursing homes to take the patients.

"It's the same all over in every big city," a hospital administrator said. "It's a state problem, a national problem. I just don't know what it takes to get the public to start caring."

Chinese celebrate anniversary

TOKYO (AP) — Holidaying Chinese streamed through the streets of Peking today beneath huge portraits of Chairman Mao Tse-tung to celebrate the 24th anniversary of the People's Republic of China.

"Peking today is bathed in an atmosphere of vigor and gaiety," said Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency. "Five-star flags flutter everywhere, along the streets and in the lanes. Tien An Men Square looks all the more magnificent."

A huge portrait of Mao hung from the Gate of Heavenly Peace dominating the central square; portraits of Marx, Engels, Lenin and Stalin were displayed on the north side of the square, and on the south side was Sun Yat-sen, the founder of the Chinese republic.

Communist party leaders, "compatriots of Taiwan province, compatriots from Hong Kong and Macao, overseas Chinese and Chinese of foreign citizenship" were on hand for anniversary ceremonies, the agency said.

David K.E. Bruce, chief of the U.S. liaison office in Peking, was among more than 1,500 foreign guests who attended a reception given by the foreign ministry Sunday night. Hsinhua reported. Others reported at the reception were V.G. Kan-kovsky, deputy head of the Soviet delegation for the Chinese-Soviet border talks, and Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the exiled Cambodian chief of state.

The controlled Chinese press marked the holiday by urging the Chinese people to keep their country from "degenerating" into capitalism and to stay vigilant against "a surprise attack by Soviet revisionist social imperialism."

Former newspaper owner dies

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP) — James Todd, lifelong Missouri newspaperman, is dead at 87.

Todd retired as co-owner and publisher of the Moberly Monitor-Index in 1969, but continued active at the paper until recent months.

He died Sunday at the home. Editor Tom Hackward conceded last year that Todd's ceaseless enthusiasm was something of an embarrassment.

"He used to give me assignments. Now he comes in and asks what he can do to help. When the new owners took over, they told Mr. Todd he was welcome to help. He not only helps but does a yeoman's job of work in every department of the newspaper."

Todd started at the age of 9 as a printer's assistant at the Nodaway County Democrat in Maryville, his birthplace. When James Todd Sr., his father, died in 1907, he took over as a publisher.

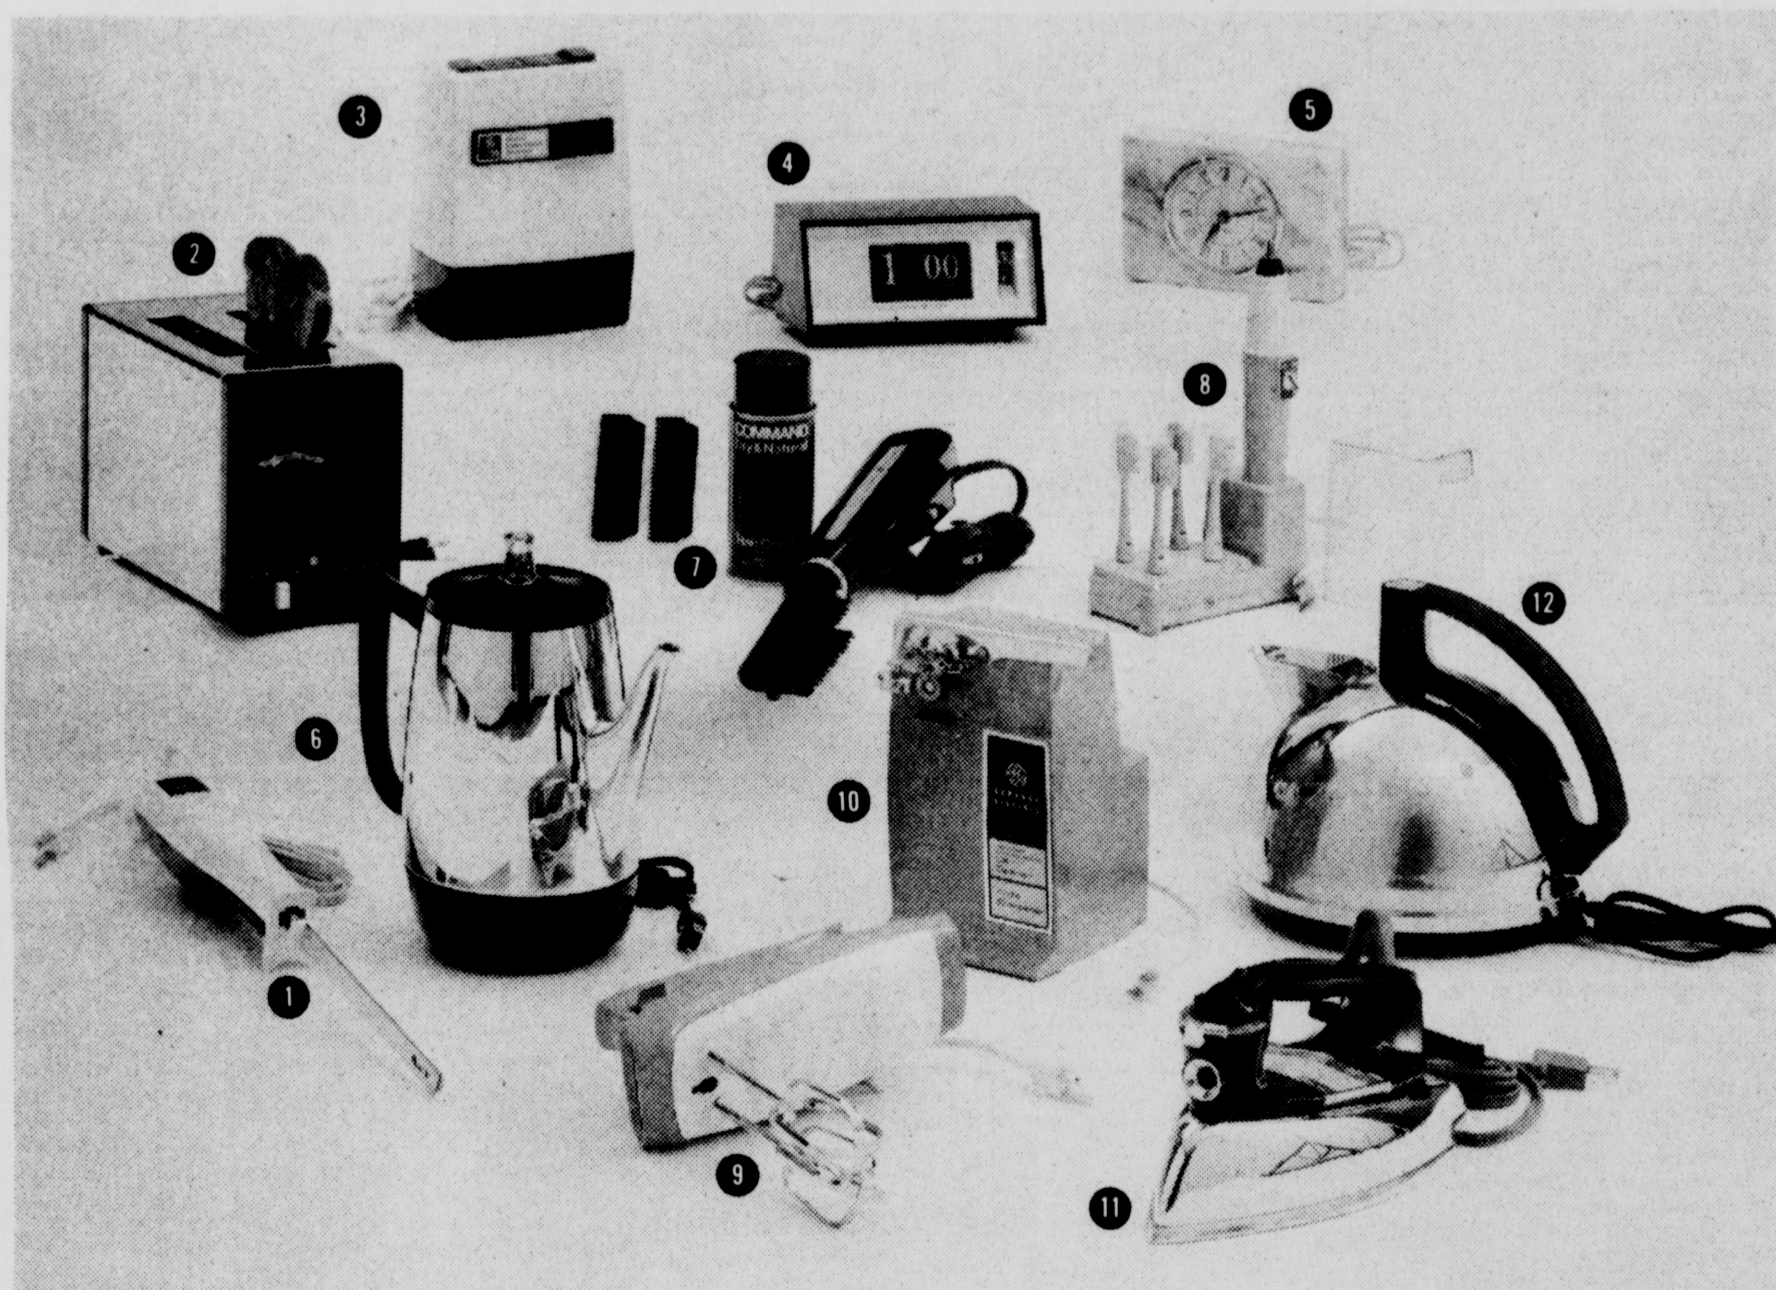

He purchased the Moberly newspaper in 1929 with the late W. T. VanCleve, continuing to run it until 1969 with VanCleve's sons.

Todd was a past president of the Missouri Press Association, the Missouri Association of Dailies and was Missouri chairman of the Associated Press in 1955 and 1956.
